THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Red Cross and The Unions

Washington, April 2.

NOW that the Red Cross drive for $100,000,000 is over and there can be no charge of interference with its success it seems salutary for the Red Cross's future to call attention again to the contract between it and the two labor unions—the CIO and the AFL.

—o—

THIS contract was entered into in 1942. Under it, the unions took over the business of collecting from their members for the National War Fund, the Community Funds and the Red Cross. The Red Cross, according to its own figures, has paid the unions more than half a million dollars for "expenses" in that time. The recent campaign was made under the provisions of this contract. The National War Fund has been discontinued. The Community Funds are out. The Red Cross alone remains under union contract.

ITS contract expires next month and the Central Committee will decide at its meeting on April 8 whether to rescind or renew. This is a momentous decision. Either the Red Cross will discard an arrangement which has aroused deep resentment among workers and contributors and is in clear conflict with Red Cross traditions and principles or it will become permanently and unwholesomely riveted upon it. The Central Committee, supreme governing body of the organization, is composed of eighteen members but the attendance rarely is more than twelve. For the past two years this committee has been dominated by Chairman Basil O'Connor, who was supported by the CIO for reappointment last December and is believed committed to renewal of the contract. It will not be renewed, however, without opposition.

IN THE last campaign, Red Cross management defended this contract solely on the ground of expediency. It put out statements in which it told hwo well the arrangement had worked, how much money had been collected, how relatively small the expenses were and how happy everybody was about it. All of which was misleading and uncandid. Some of it was ridiculous. Especially misleading so evasive and confused as to be was the statement that "not one cent is paid by the Red Cross to any union." This, of course, is false. The money is paid to the CIO committee an war relief and the AFL committee on human rights. But these are as much part of the main unions as Mr. Sidney Hillman's Political Action Committee is part of the CIO. In all its explanations, the Red Cross management has consistently avoided the following incontestable facts:

1. That it did not enter into this contract willingly but on the written testimony of Mr. Guy Emerson, of New York, who conducted the negotiations, reluctantly and because "we had no choice." In an official report made after strong protests in the Central Committee, Mr. Emerson explained that prior to this contract the "labor leaders had been unfriendly," that after the National War Fund made its arrangement, "we had to choose between going along" or being "edged out" of the industrial field; that "we could not get a free ride."

—o—

2. THAT though the Railroad Brotherhoods and the United Mine Workers regularly contribute their quota, there is no similar contract with them and the CIO-AFL contract has been strongly denounced—particularly by Mr. John L. Lewis, who, as a Red Cross incorporator at the December meeting branded it as an outrageous "kick back" of which both the Red Cross and the unions should be ashamed. 3. Despite assertions that there was no secrecy about the contract, millions of Red Cross workers, contributors and officials never grasped its implications until the facts were printed last October. Since then thousands of protesting letters have been received—and they still continue to come in.

tion deploring the contract and 4. THAT last December a resolu-urging the Central Committee to rescind it was overwhelmingly adopted by more than 300 women from all over the country, heads of the Red Cross Special Volunteer Services. 5. That, actually, it is a device by which the Red Cross has been isolated from millions of workers to whom it can no longer make a personal appeal and the unions have acquired complete control over the charitable contributions of their members. No amount of money should compensate fo rthis. Thousands of devoted friends of the Red Cross believe this a bad arrangement and that no matter what the financial results (and they are not nearly as good as claimed) the Red Cross will not be healthy so long as it is in force. In the country generally there is a strong feeling that, regardless of how potent they may be in politics, these unions should not be influential in the Red Cross

SELLERSVILLE, Apr. 5 — The 75th anniversary of St. Paul's Reformed Church will be observed on Sunday, at which time there will be rededication of the rebuilt pipe organ.

Activities of Interest To All in The Various Communities

GLEANED BY SCRIBES

Miss Hannah McCaughey was elected president of the Buckingham Junior Women's Club at the meeting held at the headquarters of Midway Fire Co., Tuesday evening.

Other officers named at the meeting are as follows: Vice-President, Mrs. Frank Chestney; recording secretary, Miss Grace Wasser; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Orville Davis, and treasurer, Mrs. James Porter.

Members were informed the library at Buckingham high school is open to the public every Wednesday afternoon.

Speaking before members of the Village Improvement Ass'n, at the the home of Mrs. William C. Newell, Doylestown, Mrs. Noble Beacham, Lahaska, an artist and poet, emphasized the importance of appreciating the better things of life so that life will be worthwhile.

Appreciation was defined by Mrs. Beacham as a recognition of worth and a sympathetic understanding.

"We need to open our eyes," said Mrs. Beacham, "to enjoy all the lovely things in life. Appreciating is just like breathing. A lovely, quiet, rainy day in Spring is just as wonderful as any Northern Lights. To the deaf the loss of the song of the robin is more tragic than to miss conversation. Although alone, the individual does not need to be lonely.

"Early morning, the smell of new mown hay, the thrill of the bird on wing, its song, the gift of the sunset and the trusting love of animals, especially the loyal devotion of the dog, can make solitude a precious thing. We can get much into one hour, if only we know what we want, and do the thing we want to do."

Amendments to the club's by-laws were read, and action on them will be taken at the next meeting.

Contributions to the scholarship fund and the Red Cross were authorized.

Announcement was made the drive for funds for the Emergency Hospital will begin on May 1st.

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

Secretary of State Byrnes, "much distressed" at the slow progress of the deputies of the Council of Foreign Ministers in drafting the European peace treaties, has proposed a meeting of the Foreign Ministers of the United States, the Soviet Union, France and Britain in Paris beginning April 25 with the apparent hope that such a meeting would pave the way for the proposed peace conference in May.

A joint communique released by Premier Ghavam of Iran and Ivan Sadchikov, Russian Ambassador in Teheran, said "complete agreement" had been reached on all questions concerning their two governments. The agreement calls for complete evacuation of Iran by the Red Army, formation of a joint Iran-Soviet oil company and negotiations between Teheran and the people of Azerbaijan for improvements in that Province. Members of the U. N. Security Council here were pleased with the agreement, but criticol of the way it was reached.

The Commons passed the second critical reading of a bill requiring British nationals to comply with certain decisions of the Security Council designed to stop aggression and involving severance of diplomatic and economic relations with other countries.

The French Cabinet upheld the policy advocated by General de Gaulle for dismembering western Germany in a move that was a defeat for President Gouin's view that the Ruhr, the Rhineland and the Saar might be internationalized. However, both Foreign Minister Bidault, a follower of the de Gaulle policy, and President Gouin are said to have asssured Britain of their desire to negotiate an alliance with her without waiting for settlement of the German question.

Former President Hoover, returning to London from his European food survey, urged a new and more effective international organization to mobilize the world's food resources to prevent starvation among 240,000,000 Europeans.

The Soviet Union reduced its demands for Austrian farmland to feed Red Army occupation forces to claims for lands that would otherwise be uncultivated as UNRRA signed an agreement with the Austrian Government to feed and supply all Austria without restrictions in the Russian occupation zone.

PAYROLL LOBBY

To what extent are the American people willing to have their tax moneys used to keep Congressmen from voting according to conscience?

This is the interesting question raised by news reports from Washington describing the "super-lobby" set up by National Democratic Chairman Robert E. Hannegan.

The lobby is known as "Hannegan's Task Force." Its membership consists of "brain-trusters" and other representatives from the various Administrative departments at Washington.

Basicly, its purpose is quite simple: to prevent Congress from doing anything to lessen the Federal payroll, now beyond the 3,000,000 mark. The payrollers want the jobs and the Democratic high command expects the job-holders to produce votes enough this fall and two years from now to keep the party in power.

The taxpayers pay the bill.

The size of the bill is staggering. Experts (Democratic) have estimated that 1,000,000 employees could do more work, and do it better, than the 3,000,000 now in Federal jobs. Under the new schedule of Federal wages, which will up some salaries as much as 25 per cent, the waste of the padded payrolls will run about $5,000,000,000 a year.

Even for an Administration which has gone hog-wild on printing, borrowing and spending money, that isn't marbles.

Payroll waste in one year exceeds the proposed 50-year British loan.

Pennsylvania is a great agricultural state. Yet if every farm in Pennsylvania was sold for a fair market price, the total would equal approximately the sum wasted in needless Federal jobs each four months.

Everyone knows how extensive (and profitable) the cosmetics and beauty-treatment businesses are in this land where every woman wants to be beautiful—and most of them succeed. Yet if the entire cosmetics "industry" was sold out, it wouldn't cover the payroll waste for more than ten or eleven weeks.

The United States is one of the world's major cotton producers. If every bale of cotton raised in this nation in

To Resume Pastorate

DR. SOLLA TO RESUME PASTORATE ON SUNDAY

To Again Take Up Duties At Presbyterian Church of Our Saviour

IN ARMY 63 MONTHS

After an absence of five years and three months during which he served with the United States Army as chaplain, Major Andrew G. Solla will return to the Presbyterian Church of Our Saviour as its pastor tomorrow.

Chaplain Solla left the church in the early part of January, 1941, to join the 5th Infantry Division, then in process of activation, at Fort Custer, Mich. In May, 1941, the division, fully activated, moved to Tennessee for the first large scale maneuvers with the entire Second Army, to which the division was assigned. After maneuvers it returned to its station at Fort Custer, Mich., and underwent further training for the largest maneuvers that the United States has ever had, i. e., Arkansas-Louisiana, August to October, 1941. After the division went to Iceland, Major Solla was assigned to Fort Dix, N. J., where he remained for 22 months. During his stay there he was sent to the Chaplains' School at Harvard University from which he graduated in April, 1943. From Fort Dix he went to Camp Upton, L. I., as post chaplain; then to Port of Embarkation, New York, to await further assignment.

On January 7, 1944, he was assigned to a general hospital stationed at the time in New Orleans, La. It was shortly thereafter that this unit was sent to the European Theatre of Operations. The first station was in North Wales, from there to the English Midlands, and then again to North Wales with a civilian censorship group; then to Derbyshire for two months, then to the 14th Port in Southampton, during the time when thousands of our soldiers went through that port for redeployment to the continent. Another assignment came and that was with an ordnance depot stationed in Norfolkshire, where it served mostly the 8th Air Force.

Recently Major Solla received a certificate of appreciation for war service in the Army Air Forces, which was signed by General Arnold, Commander of the United States Air Forces; also an air force button, the design of which is the wings and the star.

While in the United Kingdom Chaplain Solla was sent to the University of Saint Andrews in Scotland, where he completed the pre-

139-YEAR-OLD BARN ON THE LANDRETH FARM IS GUTTED IN SPECTACULAR FIRE; LOSS ON BLDG., CONTENTS IS $35,000

Firemen Battle Flames and High Wind For 2 Hours—Residences Imperiled Nearby—Sparks Ignite Grass, Fire Hose, Thickets — Cause Is Undetermined — Blaze Discovered By Passing Truck Driver

A spectacular fire which raged through the large stone barn on the Bloosmdale Experimental Farm of D. Landreth Seed Co., early yesterday afternoon, destroyed one of Bristol's historic landmarks, and threatened many homes along North Radcliffe street, above Green Lane.

Loss is estimated by officials of the Landreth firm at $35,000—the loss on the structure being given at $25,000, and on the contents, $10,000. Cause of the blaze is undetermined.

With the interior of the three-story building completely gutted, and with officials of the firm of the opinion it will be necessary to tear down the stone walls, one of Bucks County's oldest barns may pass completely out of existence.

As firemen battled flames and wind for two hours, the date "1807" on the north side of the building stood out boldly as a reminder of the period 139 years ago when wooden pegs were used instead of nails to fasten the huge timbers which yesterday fell prey to the flames.

Not only did firemen have a battle on their hands to try to save the old structure, but had the task, together with residents of that area, of watching for smaller fires which persistently broke out in trees, dried grass, in nearby thickets, and also to prevent embers falling on structures near the barn from starting other conflagrations. The sparks carried by a strong wind also caused some pieces of fire hose to ignite.

It was shortly after the noon hour that smoke was discovered emanating from the east side of the barn on the second floor. The barn contained three stories in addition to a basement, and a cupula atop the building was a familiar sight to residents here. The blaze was discovered by the driver of a bakery truck, who notified the family of Charles Rogers, residing in a tenant house on the farm. Rogers is employed by Landreth's. The fire companies from Bristol borough and Edgely responded, and quickly had hose laid. In speaking of the blaze an official of the Landreth firm stated that firemen soon had many streams of water, with fine pressure, turned on the building, but the battle was practically lost from the start. Within a short time the building was engulfed in flames which could be seen from vantage points throughout Bristol.

In some instances firemen mounted roofs of houses along N. Radcliffe street to keep a close watch on buildings surrounding, and residents also kept vigil with brooms, helping to beat out fires that started in plots of dried grass and in trees and thickets.

The barn was owned by Miss Frances Landreth, the seed company renting the structure. The building has been used by the Landreth firm ever since it was built in 1807. A fire occurred there 10 years ago, but little damage was done at that time.

Stored in the building, which measured about 100x150 feet, was agricultural equipment used on the farm; also sash and wooden boxes for plants; wooden barrels; a small amount of hay, etc. In one end of the building was located the farm office. Two Landreth employees were in one part of the barn when the flames were discovered, unmindful of their peril. The two, Alfred Lindeman and Bernard Weinhold, escaped without injury.

A new tin roof had just been placed on the big barn, the job of painting it having been completed on Monday.

It is stated that the barn and contents were fully covered by insurance.

A large crowd was attracted to the scene, the group watching progress of the flames and work of the firemen from vantage points on N. Radcliffe street, from Green Lane, and from streets and fields nearby.

Firemen from Bristol and Edgely responded to the alarm, and directed many streams of water from the borough mains.

PENALTY TOO LOW

A bill has been approved by the House Agriculture Committee which should find no opponents except those who may wish to levy a heavier penalty on persons who fail to conform to its provisions.

The bill, designed to safeguard human beings in the use of insecticides and rodent-killers, would permit the Secretary of Agriculture to require distinctive coloring for naturally white poisons. It would require that poison-containing insecticides be labeled with a skull and crossbones and have the word, Poison, in large red letters on a contrasting background.

Manufacturers guilty of misbranding, false labeling or failure to comply with other provisions of the act would be subject to fines up to $500 for first offenses and fines up to $1,000 or a maximum of one year in prison for subsequent offenses.

Makers of such poisons would be required to register their products with the Secretary of Agriculture, with copies of labels, claims made for the products and directions for use. While the secretary could not refuse to register a product, if he found it did not come up to standard or was ineffective, he could register it under protest, making the producer subject to prosecution for violation of the new act.

The punishment proposed for violations of this bill seems to be altogether too light. Manufacturers of insecticides and rodent destroyers must be willing to accept the responsibility that goes with their particular business. They should be willing to comply with laws designed to safeguard human beings against illness or death. The penalty for the first offense seems ridiculously low, and the penalty for the second offenders is open to the same criticism.

EDUCATION AND MARRIAGE

Although he is a psychology professor and director of the marriage counseling service at Pennsylvania State College, Dr. Clifford R. Adams has let himself in for a lively argument with his statement that girls with a grammar school education are better fitted to be wives than college-trained women. One-fifth of college women never marry and one-third of those who do never make a satisfactory adjustment, he asserts.

Dr. Adams argues that the government should subsidize marriage so that people can marry younger. He reverses the theory that the husband should be the older, advising men to marry at twenty-two and pick wives as old or older. He advocates a waiting period of three months before a marriage license is issued, with a marriage counseling course meantime. But if that would have to be taken in college, wouldn't it make the prospective bride a college girl?

Security council of the United Nations seems to be spending most of its time attempting to secure the cooperation of Stalin.

PAYROLL LOBBY

a banner year was sold at current prices, the proceeds would about cover three months of needless Federal payrolls maintained to try to keep the Democrats in power.

Do those figures give you some idea of the extent to which your pocketbook is being raided, through taxes, to keep the Democratic high-command supplied with political jobs?

You can figure out for yourself, if you wish, and discover that approximately 20 cents of every dollar's tax you pay (and you are paying a great deal more than you think) goes to keep in office Federal employees whom Democratic experts themselves have said are no longer needed, now that the war is over.

This is the greatest patronage "plum-tree" in all history. No wonder Hannegan wants to protect it. No wonder he is able to find lobbyists and propagandists (financed through taxes) to try to head off the revolt against such waste now boiling within the Democratic Party.

This is the same Hannegan who some months ago complained that there were "too many statesmen" and not enough party workers on the Federal payrolls; presumably his rise from obscurity to high position under President Truman has given him opportunity to correct this situation.

In keeping with the times, Hannegan is seeking to make it appear that he is fighting against lobbies, whereas he is trying to perfect the greatest and most richly financed lobby ever seen.

Strongly represented in his "task force" is the U. S. Treasury. When Hannegan was reminded that Secretary of the Treasury Vinson had frowned upon the idea of treasury workers lobbying for laws to set up new public jobs, Hannegan is reported to have said: "I'm not worried about making anybody in Washington angry except the President."

With promises of more—or threats of less—patronage to members of Congress, and with the lush spending of public moneys in political ways, Chairman Hannegan would like to "talk turkey" to Congressmen who vote what he thinks is the wrong way.

Just at the moment his conversations with the Congressmen of his own party are apt to follow a different vein. Upwards of a hundred Democratic Congressmen, aroused at a line in an official Democratic publication, have demanded an apology from their Chairman.

From Hannegan's headquarters was issued a comment concerning the Case Labor Bill—saying that those who voted for it cast "a vote against the American people."

Now a great many Democrats say they propose to find out whether Democrats or the CIO-PAC are running their Party.

The success and direction of the "Task Force" lobby was well shown in the instance of the OPA extension. This was sought desperately because of its patronage and other political value during the coming elections.

While it was being jammed through the House committee, on the grounds that national economy is in a grave and critical emergency, President Truman was cheerfully announcing that the nation is "over the hump of reconversion" and that production has reached a new high.

Reconcile these two views, if you can.

Dr. Solla To Resume Pastorate On Sunday

scribed course and also attended special lectures at Cambridge University. Incidentally, he was stationed at two places, Winchester and Harling road, where he had been stationed in 1918 during the First World War, and where he revisited friends which he had made in those days. From England Major Solla was sent on temporary duty to France and Italy, then back to England and finally back home. Besides working with the U. S. army, he also worked among the Italian co-operators, and German prisoners.

While in the United Kingdom he had the pleasure of meeting and dining with many prominent churchmen, both of the established church and the free churches. Among the churchmen of the established church were the Lord Bishop of Litchfield, who recently died, and who had been mentioned for the See of Canterbury after the death of Archbishop Temple. Major Solla also met the Lord Bishop of Norwich, who is also private chaplain to His Majesty; and Canon Keith, vicar of the famous Wimborne Minster, in which the localite took care of the service on two different occasions.

and that this "special arrangement" gives them very great influence.

IN at least one city—St. Louis—the CIO has now succeeded in organizing some of the Red Cross social workers. It would like to organize in all. No class, sect, union or group ought to be especially influential in this greatest of all humanitarian agencies. All ought to be on the same voluntary basis. No contract with any agency should be necessary. None should be paid "expenses." Expediency should never prevail over principle inside the Red Cross, where many detest this sordid deal, earnestly want it are some encouraging reports, the discontinued. But, though there setup is such that they are not very hopeful.

The Bristol base ball club will hold a practice on Leedom's field on Sundays against the newly-organized Hibernian Club of the Bristol Suburban League.

Mgr. Mulholland has several players he wants to try out and this will be a chance to see what they can do as the Fourth warders are said to have a good line up this season. Mulholland will work Danny Dugan, Glen Miller and Bashman three innings each. A new catcher Yankoski will also work-out. He has just returned from the Newark club of the International League.

The AA opening game will be April 28 on Leedoms grounds, when Charley Hargreave of Trenton Potteries will line up against the Bristol A. A. Club.

Luncheon Precedes A Travel Club Meeting

The annual meeting of The Travel Club followed a covered dish luncheon in the club home yesterday afternoon. Twenty-five partook of the luncheon, with additional members attending the meeting.

Mrs. Harry Neher presided at the session, with minutes read by Mrs. Carl Foell. Members voted on choice of suggested county songs and the delegates named to the Bucks Co. Federation meeting for April 26th, Mrs. Emil Metzger and Mrs. Leon J. H. Hutton, were instructed which to vote for.

Reports of chairmen of all committees and of officers were received. The report of the auditors, Mrs. Elwood Goslin and Mrs. Frank Lehman, was received.

After giving her annual report, the resignation of Mrs. Neher as president, which had been submitted to the executive committee, was read. Mrs. David M. Sheerer, Jr., will fill out the unexpired term as president, and Mrs. Hutton will serve as vice president. To the retiring president Mrs. Theodore B. Megargee presented a corsage and a past president's pin. Corsages were also given to Mrs. Sheerer and Mrs. Hutton.

Mrs. Clarence Moyer made a plea for members to assist with the Red Cross sewing project in the community house on Tuesdays and Wednesdays. The club voted to donate a prize for the children's egg hunt at Washington Crossing Park on April 20th.

A meeting of the executive committee will be held at the Sheerer residence on May 2nd. Hostesses yesterday were Mrs. Harold Hunter and Mrs. Keith M. Rosser.

Many Items of Business Cared For by Auxiliary

Members were informed that a gift box had been sent to a hospitalized veteran at Naval Hospital, Philadelphia; a gift to the "adopted" man at Coatesville Hospital; and flowers and cards to several members who are ill.

The membership chairman reported total membership of 111. Mrs. Harold H. Dettmer, rehabilitation chairman, informed that $131.35 had been realized on a card party for the benefit of the Valley Forge Hospital green house fund. It was stated that at the last Bi-County Council meeting a check for $1275 for this fund was presented the state president. The sum of $11.34 was netted on a commercial demonstration.

Reservations for the Bi-County Council meeting at Langhorne on April 18th are to be in by next week. Garments for child welfare shower will be taken to that session.
